

NOAA Weather Wire Service (NWWWS)

Providing Weather Information to the United States

NWWWS Operations

The NOAA Weather Wire Service (NWWWS) is a satellite data collection and dissemination system operated by the National Weather Service (NWS). Its purpose is to provide state and federal government, commercial users, and private citizens with timely delivery of meteorological, hydrological, climatological, and geophysical information (a complete listing of NWWWS products is available at <http://www.nws.noaa.gov/nwwws/>).

NWWWS data products originate at 141 NWS offices, including 106 Weather Forecast Offices (WFO), 13 WFO/River Forecast Centers (WFO/RFC), representing 26 NWS offices in 13 co-located facilities, and 9 NWS National Centers, utilizing the Advanced Weather Information Processing System (AWIPS). NWWWS also receives products from the U. S. Geological Survey's Earthquake Center. NWWWS delivers priority 1 weather warning products to users within 10 seconds or less, making it the fastest delivery method available for these critical products.

NWWWS network administration, maintenance, and field support is provided by DynCorp Information Systems LLC, under NWS contract.

Product Routing

Collection of products and satellite uplink is performed at all 13 WFO/RFCs, 6 National Centers, and 1 WFO. Products are then received from the satellite at Master Ground Station # 1 in Alexandria, VA., and broadcast back to the satellite to users from Master Ground Station # 2 in Ft. Meade, MD. Most products are sent twice through two satellite uplink sites (paired AWIPS hubs) to ensure receipt if one site goes down. Additionally, NWWWS receives back-up support from the AWIPS Network Control Facility in Silver Spring, MD, for priority 1 weather watches and warnings. Duplicate products are removed from the NWWWS data stream at MPC before broadcast.

Receiving NWWWS Products

There are three options for receiving NWWWS products: C-band satellite, Ku-band satellite, and INTERNET service. Software is also available to manipulate, select, and display data. For more information, contact DynCorp at 1-800-633-2340, or see the DynCorp/NWWWS webpage at <http://dyncorp.com/contracts/nwwws/>.

NWWWS Program Management

Responsibility for overall management of the NWWWS resides at NWS Headquarters in Silver Spring, MD., within the Office of Operational Systems, Telecommunications Operations Center, (W/OPS32). Principal contacts are:

Martin Baron (NWWWS Program Leader)
